Iberdrola's interim dividend for 2022 will amount to EUR 0.18 gross per share, as reported today to the Spanish National Securities Market Commission (CNMV). Investors opting for the cash dividend will receive the corresponding amount on 31 January.

The company once again offers its shareholders three options in this edition of Iberdrola Flexible Remuneration: to receive the interim dividend in cash - the aforementioned 0.18 euros gross per share -; to sell their allocation rights on the market; or to obtain new bonus shares in the group free of charge.

This interim dividend for 2022 will be completed with the final dividend that the company expects to pay in July, if approved by the company's General Shareholders' Meeting.

Shareholders who opt for the option to receive new shares must hold 60 free allotment rights in order to receive a new share in the company.

The three options - to receive the interim dividend in cash, to sell the rights in the market or to receive new Iberdrola shares - are combinable, so the shareholder could choose one of the alternatives or combine them according to his or her preferences.

The Iberdrola Flexible Remuneration system assigns by default the option to receive new shares, so those shareholders who prefer to receive their remuneration in cash must notify their bank between 6 and 19 January.

In order to implement this new edition of the remuneration system, a capital increase with a maximum reference market value of €1.165 billion will be carried out.
