

Video transcription

We are the energy that moves the world

At Iberdrola we had a pioneering vision to improve the world through electrification with renewables, networks and energy storage. Two decades later, through our investment of €160 billion, generating progress and prosperity for all. We are the energy that moves the world.

Year after year, the 42,000 women and men who make up Iberdrola, along with our hundreds of thousands of partners, give a new boost to that life cycle to continue making the world advance.

And we do it by driving forward decarbonisation and self-sufficiency with more renewable energies. In 2023 we have once again led the installation of new clean generation capacity with new investments such as the first offshore wind farm in the United States.

We also continue to expand and reinforce our networks – the true backbone of the transition towards clean energies. Transportation and distribution infrastructures equipped with the latest digital technologies and artificial intelligence, through which we deliver clean, safe and competitive energy to our customers. Always with the best quality of service. If we were to lay our entire network in a straight line, we would reach a length of 800,000 miles – 30 times the circumference of the Earth.

And to harness the full potential of the sun and wind, we have continued to promote storage and manageable renewables, with large infrastructures such as gigabatteries, capable of storing clean energy during periods of low consumption and making it available to each customer when most needed.

We bright and energise the lives of over 100 million people in every corner of the world. We are offering them more services to meet their needs and improving the environmental footprint of all energy consumption – through electrification and solutions based on green hydrogen. We stand by our customers 365 days a year to offer them a safe and quality service, while together we are taking care of the planet. The support is to promote already to increase the electricity demand.

To continue accelerating this cycle, we work with other companies, institutions and organisations with whom we share the same truly sustainable development model, one that creates value for all.

That is the dividend we leave to society every day, by creating more and more jobs in our company and sustaining hundreds of thousands of positions through our supply chain, including thousands of companies of all sizes, that grow and internationalise alongside us. And we are proud to contribute through our activity essential resources to support the public services for everyone. And because we want to continue building a better world, we foster talent and professional development in a sector with an important future.

A future that, moreover, we are helping to create today by investing and generating an innovative ecosystem to turn every challenge into a solution, helping to combat climate change, protecting each of the ecosystems in our surroundings, promoting diversity and inclusion because sharing our differences makes us better, and championing equality within and outside our group. A company of individuals who unite together to dedicate their time and work to other people, and who apply in every task the best practices and ethics, transparency and corporate governance, generating resources to reward the investment made by our hundreds of thousands of shareholders. Working everyday to contribute together to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals.

This is Iberdrola – the largest European utility and one of the two largest in the world by market capitalisation. To accelerate and make this virtuous circle even larger, Iberdrola achieved a new record for investments, assets and results in 2023. And our future's outlooks look strong because the world is moving in the same direction as us, towards more sustainable forms of energy with which to continue creating industry, economic growth and new jobs. Improving the lives of each one of us so that, with each turn, the world continues to progress for the benefit of all.