Iberdrola is celebrating 125 years of history with a commemorative ONCE lottery ticket highlighting its support for sport and its contribution to a more equal and inclusive society.

Ignacio Galán, Executive Chairman of Iberdrola; Alberto Durán, President of the Spanish Paralympic Committee and Vice-President for Institutional Coordination, Solidarity and External Relations of the ONCE General Council; and Miguel Carballeda, President of the ONCE Social Group, presented the lottery ticket today at an event also attended by José Sáinz Armada and Mario Ruiz-Tagle, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Iberdrola España, respectively.

Ignacio Galán thanked ONCE for joining in the celebrations marking Iberdrola's 125th anniversary and highlighted the company's close relationship with sport, "as an embodiment of values with which the company is deeply committed, such as equality, inclusion, effort and self-improvement". For more than two decades, the company has therefore supported the Paralympic movement and was a pioneer in promoting women's sport, an initiative that now benefits hundreds of thousands of athletes.

Miguel Carballeda and Alberto Durán, in turn, thanked Iberdrola for "a longstanding relationship built on a shared commitment to people with disabilities and, in particular, to athletes, making the company an outstanding example of social commitment".

Five million copies of the lottery ticket will be issued. It features Desirée Vila, Paralympic athlete and Iberdrola Ambassador, and carries the slogan “Proud to promote Paralympic sport”.

Iberdrola: 125 years contributing to economic and social progress

The presentation of the lottery ticket is one of the initiatives through which Iberdrola is celebrating its 125th anniversary throughout 2026. Under the slogan “125 years of light”, the company has developed an extensive programme of social, cultural and educational activities aimed at employees, customers, shareholders and society as a whole.

Since 2005, Iberdrola has partnered with the ADOP Plan of the Spanish Paralympic Committee, supporting the preparation and participation of Paralympic athletes in top-level competitions. Its commitment extends beyond sport, with university and postgraduate scholarships that help athletes further their education and prepare for their future entry into the labour market. This commitment is complemented by its support for women's sport in Spain, an area in which Iberdrola has been a pioneer and where it now supports 35 federations and 800,000 female athletes.

Weekend prize draw

The ONCE Weekend Prize Draw (known in Spanish as “El Sueldazo del Fin de Semana de la ONCE”) offers a top prize every Saturday and Sunday consisting of €300,000 for matching the five numbers and series, plus €5,000 per month for 20 consecutive years to one ticket. There are also prizes of €2,000 per month for 10 consecutive years for four other tickets.

ONCE lottery tickets are sold by the organisation's more than 21,400 male and female vendors. They can also be purchased at www.juegosonce.es and from authorised partner outlets.
